There were concerns that such a large “shed” would be used for commercial business, which the committee were not in agreement with. The application stated that it would be replacing an old shed, but this was not a simple replacement it had been enlarged. The application stated that this would not be insulated, but in the photos, there was obvious insulation being fitted. The committee was not confident about the use, size and general application and urged the case officer to look into this in more detail. There was no mention of a “driveway” to the shed/workshop.

	It was resolved to submit objections to the retrospective application. The committee wished to ensure this was not used for commercial purposes. The committee considered it too large to be a replacement of the former shed and had doubts about the application as it stated no insulation, where photos showed insulation being installed. Council also wished to state it did not want this converted into a second property. VOTE All in favour of the objections shown.
