The Victoria Road/Hailsham Road was discussed further with the approximate cost of £800-1000 to pay for those works required. The clerk read out the reply from the Highways agency (HA) regarding the possibility of having the temporary traffic lights left in place. Councillors discussed the lack of consultation from the HA as no councillor present could recall the agency asking the Council of their views on the junction improvement. The point was made that the HA made this scheme without consulting PTC and the junction was now considered by PTC and many residents as more dangerous than before the alterations. The stated reason that traffic lights were not installed was due to cost, comments were made that money had been wasted on the current improvement scheme, which considered not to be working, so the general feeling was that it would have been better for the HA to have consulted with PTC and the residents who live in that area on the scheme in depth.
